Scheduling Research Appointments, Library Instruction, and Study Rooms

Introduction Personal Librarian & Highlander Scholars Program College Archives Room Reservations Library Instruction Requests

DOROTHY W. HIGHTOWER CLC & LIBRARY

You can request a consultation appointment with your personal librarian. (S)he will help you with your research needs. You are also able to reserve study rooms. Faculty may also request that librarians provide library instruction.

Library instruction is one of the core services provided by the library. Students learn how to effectively and efficiently use research tools and techniques. Whether attending library instruction sessions or utilizing our online tutorials students acquire critical thinking and problem solving skills by learning how to select and evaluate books and electronic databases based on credibility, relevancy, authority, accuracy, and purpose.

If you have any questions or would like to make suggestions regarding library services or resources, please let us know at (678) 359-5076 or library@gordonstate.edu. Click Personal Librarian Program tab to get started.

The Online Reservations Requests page shown above at libcal.gordonstate.edu provides links to the following:

- 1. Personal Librarian Program - Book an appointment to get research help (recommendations of search terms, databases, books, etc.) from a personal librarian by subject or by major. You may also get help from a librarian in one of the following ways:
 - ☐ By phone at 678-359-5076 or email. Check the personnel page at <https://www.gordonstate.edu/departments/library/personnel-hours/index.html> for email addresses.
 - ☐ On the Libguides look for the Contact info.
- 2. College Archives - Book an appointment to use the Archives.
- 3. Study Room Reservations - All study rooms, whether they are group or individual, must be reserved prior to using them.

Finding Information in the Library

To find books in paper or electronic format, use the online catalog, called GIL-Find.

To find articles, use the databases available in GALILEO.

All colleges in the University System of Georgia use GIL-Find to find books and GALILEO to find magazine, journal and newspaper articles.

Using My Account

To sign into your account you must have two things:

- A. Your User name from your Gordon State email without the @gordonstate.edu.
- B. Your Password from your Gordon State email.

GIL Find Opening Screen

Click the LOG IN FOR SERVICES link to access your account.

The screenshot shows the GIL Find Opening Screen. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the GIL Find logo on the left and a series of links: LIBRARY SEARCH, FIND E-JOURNALS, NEW TITLES, BROWSE SEARCH, LIBRARY HOME, GALILEO, and a menu icon. On the right side of the navigation bar, there are two circular icons (a refresh icon and a location pin icon) and a link labeled "LOG IN FOR SERVICES" which is circled in red. Next to it is a "Menu" dropdown arrow.

Below the navigation bar is a large blue search bar with the placeholder text "Search anything". To the right of the search bar are two dropdown menus: "GIL-Find" and "Gordon State College", followed by a microphone icon and a magnifying glass icon. To the right of the search bar is a link labeled "ADVANCED SEARCH".

Below the search bar is a row of three dropdown menus: "All items", "containing all of my search words", and "anywhere in the record".

The main content area is divided into four sections:

Limiting results to print books 1–

On the left column of the results list page under Format check Books. Click on Apply Filters to limit results to books only.

The screenshot shows a library search results interface. On the left, a sidebar contains filter options. Under the 'Format' section, the 'Books (1,892)' option is selected and highlighted with a red rectangle. Below it are 'Visual (255)', 'Annuals (56)', 'Journals (7)', and 'Scores (1)'. Under the 'Creation Date' section, there are 'CLEAR' and 'APPLY FILTERS' buttons. A large red arrow points to the 'APPLY FILTERS' button. The main area displays search results. The first result is 'Loves Labours Lost' by William Shakespeare, published by Zhingoora Books in 2010. The second result is 'The tempest' by William Shakespeare, published by First Avenue Editions in 2015. The third result is 'Hamlet' by William Shakespeare. Each result includes a book icon, the title, author, publisher, year, and a link for 'Online access'.

Description
One of America's most celebrated women, Emily Dickinson was virtually unpublished in her own time and unknown to the public at large. Yet since the first publication of a limited selection of her poems in 1890, she has emerged as one of the most challenging and rewarding writers of all time. Born into a prosperous family in small town Amherst, Massachusetts, she had an above average education for a woman, attending a private Show more

Google vs. GALILEO's Discover tool (EDS)

A search in Google gave 31,500,000 results on water purification drinking water, and only 7 of the first 52 were usable since most were advertisements.

A search on the same search terms using the Discover tool gave 2,364,341 results and none were advertisements. 873,141 of the results were available in full text.

The image displays two side-by-side screenshots of search results for the query "water purification drinking water".

Left Screenshot (Google):

- Search bar: "water purification drinking water"
- Results: About 31,500,000 results (0.66 seconds)
- Top results are mostly advertisements for water filtration systems, including links to "Download Guide on Lab Water", "Water Treatment Systems", "Bottle-Free Water Coolers", "Household Water Specialist", and "Drinking Water Filtration Systems".
- Product listings for water purifiers are visible, such as "Elkay EZH2O LZS8WSLP Next" for $1,029.00 and "Katadyn Hiker Pro Transparent Water" for $67.96.

Right Screenshot (GALILEO Discover):

- Search bar: "water purification"
- Results: 1 - 20 of 2,364,341
- Top results include "Water purification" from the Salem Press Encyclopedia of Science and "Water purification [electronic resource]" by Nikolaj Gertsen and Linus Sonderby, editors.
- Related images and news items are also visible on the right side of the page.

Why should you use the Discover Tool instead of Google?

- The Discover Tool allows you to search all of the GALILEO databases and the GIL Catalog at one time.
- Unlike Google, the Discover Tool has no advertisements.
- The Discover Tool allows you to limit your search results in different ways such as full text, subject, language, date, etc. Google does not allow you to do this in the same way.
- It finds the type of sources that your professor wants to see in your paper, whether they are books, journals, magazines, newspapers or videos.
- Unlike Google, the majority of the articles found by the Discover Tool are in full text and already paid for so you don't have to worry about paying anything extra. If you use Google or other web search tools, they'll charge you.
- They are not Internet Web Sites so you may use as many of them as you want.

Using the Discover Tool -1

The Discover Tool, GALILEO's answer to Google, searches for relevant, authoritative sources in the GIL catalog and GALILEO databases at the same time. A large percentage of the sources are full text journals, magazines, newspapers and books; none are advertisements. Type your search terms in the box and click on the magnifying glass button to get the results list.

Using the Discover Tool -2

Begin with the Discover tool's answer to Wikipedia, the Research Starter. These serve as starting points for your research providing background information from subject encyclopedias. Most include a bibliography at the end of the article; use this to find potential reputable sources.

The screenshot shows the GALILEO Discover search results page for the keyword "water purification". The search results are displayed in a list format. The first result is highlighted with a red circle and is titled "Research Starter" and "Water purification." The description states: "Water purification is the process of removing sediment, microorganisms, and other contaminants from water supply sources. Nature provides a few forms... More". The result is from the "Salem Press Encyclopedia of Science".

The second result is titled "1 Water purification [electronic resource] / Nikolaj Gertsen and Linus Sonderby, editors." and is from Nova Science Publishers, Inc., 2009. It is an eBook with 316 pages, in English, and is available online. The subjects are "Water -- Purification; Electronic books".

The third result is titled "2 Water Purification" and is from the "Water and Soil Pollution Science and Technology Series" by Linus Gertsen and Nikolaj Sonderby, published by Nova Science Publishers, Inc. in 2009. It is an eBook available in the EBSCOhost database. The description states: "Water purification is the process of removing undesirable chemical and biological contaminants from raw water. The goal is to..."

The right side of the screen shows the detailed record for the first result, "Water purification". It includes the title, author (Ungvársky, Janine), and the database (Research Starters). There is a "Find Similar Results" button and a "Water purification" section with a description and a diagram of a water purification system.

The left side of the screen shows the search interface with the keyword "water purification" entered and the search button. There are also links to "Basic Search", "Advanced Search", and "Search History".

Using the Discover Tool - 3

Unlike Google the Discover tool actually allows limiting of search results by using facets as shown below. Three of the most useful limiters are Full Text, Language but especially Subject. You may also limit to materials only available through the Gordon GIL Catalog Only.

The screenshot displays the Discover tool interface with search filters on the left and search results on the right. The filters are highlighted with a red border.

The main content area displays the article 'Screen Time' under the 'AGES & STAGES' heading, specifically for 'Birth to 2'. The article is by Elizabeth Callahan and discusses screen time for babies. A photo of a smiling baby is featured. The article text begins with 'EVERY PARENT needs a break from baby care now and then. Whether it's 30 minutes to get dinner on the table or 10 to hop into the shower, sometimes popping in a DVD to occupy your infant is the only way to get the job done. Though the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) recommends no screen time for children under 2, you can rest easy knowing that a little TV won't harm your baby. Just don't expect her to make giant learning leaps from a steady diet of watching kid videos on her own. Babies learn best—and more quickly—from loving interactions with you and their other caregivers. Especially when it comes to acquiring verbal skills, good old-fashioned talking, playing, and singing with others stimulates a baby's brain far more than any TV show can. Why? Because verbalizing back and forth and gaining and showing reactions are the building blocks of human conversation. TV, however, is a one-way street. It's not interactive. It's not responsive. It's not a baby.' A printer icon is circled in red in the top right corner of the article viewer window.

Screen Time

TV fascinates babies. But you are the real star of the show
BY ELIZABETH CALLAHAN

EVERY PARENT needs a break from baby care now and then. Whether it's 30 minutes to get dinner on the table or 10 to hop into the shower, sometimes popping in a DVD to occupy your infant is the only way to get the job done. Though the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) recommends no screen time for children under 2, you can rest easy knowing that a little TV won't harm your baby. Just don't expect her to make giant learning leaps from a steady diet of watching kid videos on her own. Babies learn best—and more quickly—from loving interactions with you and their other caregivers.

Especially when it comes to acquiring verbal skills, good old-fashioned talking, playing, and singing with others stimulates a baby's brain far more than any TV show can. Why? Because verbalizing back and forth and gaining and showing reactions are the building blocks of human conversation. TV, however, is a one-way street. It's not interactive. It's not responsive. It's not a baby.

Try to limit screen time for your baby as much as you can. If she'll be watching something for a prolonged period, while you clean the house, for example, drop in and sit with her occasionally. For older children who have already gained some language skills, TV can spark new ideas (the AAP recommends no more than two hours of total screen time per day for preschoolers), but babies lack the cognitive capacity necessary to learn in this way—so they need your help. You can use a DVD as a jumping-off point, but “chat” with your baby about what she sees. Repeat names; point out colors, animals, other babies or children; and describe what's going on. This is an easy way to make TV time
